NOTICES

Reminiscences

An idea for a new U3A Group.

Is anybody interested in helping me form a new group along the following lines?

- To meet once a month in a member's home.
- We would pre-select for each meeting a subject relating to the members' life experiences; for example, "memories of schooldays", "first job" and similar.
- Each member would either give a short verbal presentation, or prepare a short written essay or poem on the selected subject. This would last about ten minutes and include time for comment and discussion by the other members.

At present we do not have a "Creative Writing" or a "Public Speaking" group but maybe such groups could develop from this suggested project. If there is sufficient interest, I would be prepared to act as group leader for a trial period (say 6 months) but I would stress that I have no qualifications or special skills whereby I may be considered in any way a tutor. Perhaps we do have experienced writers and speakers amongst our membership who would be prepared to come forward.

For consideration:

- Numbers – Eight would seem to be a maximum.
- Venue – Ideally the same member's home for all meetings but, more realistically, on a rota basis for those with sufficient space. (I can offer on a rota basis).
- Time and day – Monday or Friday of the first week of the month would appear not to clash with other Group activities. I suggested a time of 2.15–3.45pm.

If you are interested in this proposal please contact me ☎ 020 8850 2046

Congratulations go to the winners of this year's Photography Competition, and thanks to all who entered. The winners were Michael Jordan, who took first prize, and runners-up were Mary Huggins and Olive Mercer. Their entries can be viewed on the "Gallery" page of our website. My thanks also go to Ann Harlow, Mary Allen, Pam Shaw and Mary Huggins for their help in running the competition.

Warning

I recently received a telephone call, apparently a recording, in an American accent, saying, "Attention all Visa and credit card holders. It is likely that interest rates on these cards will be increased within the next month. To get more information, press [number] now." I put the telephone down, but I wonder whether it is either an attempt to get confidential details, or a high-rate telephone line. I reported this to my local police neighbourhood watch, and they said that they will include a warning in their next Neighbourhood information email. Police advice is to put the telephone down.

Classical Music : Leader Derick Johnson

Alan Griffiths presented his selection for our September meeting starting with Ralph Vaughan Williams' 8th Symphony played by the Hallé Orchestra conducted by Sir John Barbirolli to whom this work was dedicated. The first performance was given on 2nd May 1956. Frederick Delius followed this with his Dance Rhapsody No 1 played by the London Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Norman Del Mar. This piece was composed of many variations and used a wide variety of instruments. We broke off at this point for tea/coffee and cake and our usual enjoyable chat. The second half started with Sir Edward Elgar's Cello Concerto in B minor conducted by the composer with the New Symphony Orchestra. Beatrice Harrison was the cello soloist and she spent several days with the composer to form a joint interpretation. The last item for the afternoon was John Field's Piano concerto No 1 played by the Northern Sinfonia conducted by David Haslam. Field was a contemporary of Chopin but, although Field respected Chopin, this was not reciprocated. This piece was played by Benjamin Frith who was outstanding. Although Field was Irish he introduced a marked Scottish influence.

(i) In May 1857, the pianist and conductor Charles Hallé created an orchestra to perform at the Manchester Art Treasures Exhibition, and the orchestra performed there until October 1857. Hallé then decided to continue work with this orchestra as a formal organisation, and it gave its first concert under those auspices on 30th January 1858. The orchestra's home for the first part of its history was the Free Trade Hall in Manchester. Now the UK's oldest extant professional symphony orchestra (and the fourth oldest in the world), it supports a choir and a youth orchestra and releases recordings on its own record label.

National Trust & English Heritage : Leaders John & Olive Mercer

Our September visit was to Chiddingstone Castle. It is somewhat mis-named as it was built originally in the 16th century, redeveloped in 1805 in semi-classical style, and then given battlements to make it look Gothic. It was the home of the Streatfield family for many years. After World War Two it became a school for a short time before being bought for £6,000 in 1952 by Denys Bower. He was a passionate art collector who built up a collection of Japanese armour and jewelry, and who had a life-long devotion to the Stuarts, hanging many pictures of that royalty on his walls. He was quite an unusual man who lived a colourful life – so colourful that he served time in Wormwood Scrubs for the attempted murder of his girlfriend. Today, the castle is in the hands of trustees and a devoted band of volunteers. We were fascinated by the visit because so much was unexpected, as, for example, an Egyptian sarcophagus at the top of the stairs and a full sized crocodile in an anteroom. We had lunch in the little café which provided tasty food and was tastefully decorated.

It is well worth a visit and has extensive grounds which we were unable to explore because of heavy rain.

Ramblers 2 : Leaders Pat & Alf Cracknell

Ten members took part in our September ramble which started on Hayes Common on a warm, sunny morning. We went first through woods, part of Keston Common, and then followed a long footpath round fields and woods until we reached the hamlet of Nash. This hamlet was unknown to most of the group but this is hardly surprising since it comprises only a farm and Nash House. We continued uphill through fields and woods past a large red brick Victorian house, which has good views over the valley, until we reached Keston village on the edge of the Common where members were able to refresh themselves at the ‘Greyhound’.

Afterthought

There's an old proverb that says just about anything you want it to.
